Faculty/staff do a good job of not saying anything that could be racist or perceived to be attacking any race. The emails we get from the student body president and the chancellor help show that the university as a whole does not want racism, sexual assault/harassment, or any type of harm to their students to occur. The campus police also does a good job of hosting events like "Do You See What I See" in order to give students a chance to voice their concerns or opinions.	Hispanic/Latino	Female
I feel like diversity should always be promoted, encouraged, and supported, but that people who lack diversity should not be put down because of it. In reference to the issues of sexual assault on campus, I believe that often a list of resources is given to contact if anything happens or if someone is a victim, but that a list is all that is provided. There should be an active force on campus working to stop these things from happening and working to actively encourage people to utilize the resources available.	White	Female
Through the humanities classes that I have taken, especially those in Religious Studies, I have grown as a person as a result of becoming more aware of the differences that exist between individuals and cultures. Through studying a variety of Religions and cultures, I am able to understand human nature and what it means to be human. By stepping outside of my bubble consisting of my own personal experiences, I am able to look inward, with perspective, and reassess my values and motivations. I am an introvert and have few friends. I am not very social or active in college life. I do not interact with people from different backgrounds because I do not interact with many people in general. Recently I have been making more effort to improve the quality of the relationships that I do have and to improve my skills as a social individual (that mostly means dealing the anxiety that I get when I am around new people). I feel that as I become more comfortable around people, I will become more likely to search out opportunities to make connections with people of all types. I am not aware of the universities policies on sexual harassment, but do have a perspective on sexual harassment that may be informative. In my experiences dealing with sexual harassment and exploitation, in every case the victim and the assailant were at least friendly acquaintances, if not friends. The victims never made any report because they were unable to accept that their friend would willfully act in a destructive manner towards them. I never made a report because if my friend was not willing to accept that it was sexual assault/harassment then the report would not stand, because if my friend did not want to embroil herself in a controversy then I had no right to force her into one, and because I believed that my friends would accuse me of overreacting. Looking back in hindsight I am ashamed of myself for not doing more. I think that the manner of flirting in today's society is based on unclear intentions; no one wants to state their intentions outright. When a guy is flirting with a girl and a girl becomes candid, she is accused of being rude. If a girl participates in the roundabout flirting, she is assumed to be interested even if she isn't and hasn't expressed any clear interest in the guy. I have known girls to engage in sexual acts simply because the guy expected them to.	White	Female
To support diversity on campus, I think NC State does a wonderful job at holding multicultural events, providing a wide variety of class subjects and majors, addressing problems of racism and sexism through student conduct, maintaining the foreign language and liberal arts programs and keeping the campus connected on events through emails and Wolfalerts to notify students of current issues and dangers. / I see these strategies working to promote diversity at State and encourage NC State to continue them. I believe that there are a lot of opportunities for them to interact with other students as well as themselves. Also if there are any issues the school is very supportive of the victim.	White	Male
I'm gay, and outside of Greek life, I've never felt victimized for my sexuality. I was blackballed from a fraternity for being gay, but I would vehemently defend their right to blackball me; we should have a right to choose whom we interact with. / / I do want to call out NC State's response to the journal with insensitive, yet innocuous, jokes from PKP. While I do not know anyone in PKP, to me it is utterly reprehensible that a fraternity was kicked off campus for what they had written in a PRIVATE journal, and that they were even expected to apologize for it. We should never have to apologize for our private thoughts (but the girl who broadcast the private journal should), and it sets an incredibly dangerous precedent that NC State feels that we should be punished for what we express in private forums. I now know not to keep a private journal, for if it were to be found, I fear that I could be held accountable for it, even if nothing I said was threatening or hateful (no reasonable individual would label the anecdotes in PKP's journal as threatening). As soon as free, nonthreatening expression is stifled, PC culture has gone too far.	White	Male

For the most part yes. I feel like there is a good amount of diversity on campus given current conditions of diversity in the US. The only unit on campus I have major problems with is that of the college Greek life system. This system is not only the source for many of the WolfAlerts about sexual assault or rape, but it is also a source of bigotry and racism on campus. Also, as far as I can see, Greek life also creates a perfect environment for binge drinking and excessive partying here on this campus. This is apparently very attractive to FYC students as many of them are now apart of the Greek system and even more of them attended various rushes. If I lived somewhere else other than Tucker Hall, I'm sure I wouldn't have noticed this about NC State due to the overall campus diversity.	White	Male
