Act II: OGC's Role

Who We Are

- Mission-oriented legal advice and strategic counsel
- University's legal representative
- Oversee, coordinate, and facilitate compliance
- Enterprise risk management

OGC's Role

Rule of Professional Conduct 1.13: A lawyer employed or retained by an organization represents the organization acting through its duly authorized constituents.

- Work with all colleges, units, and departments at NC State
- Advisors (not decision makers)
- Coordinators/Collaborators/Mediators
- We make house (and zoom) calls

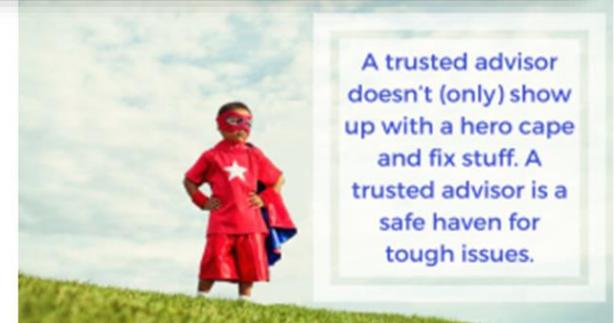

The OGC Advisor

Rule of Professional Conduct 2.1: In rendering advice, the lawyer may refer not only to law, but also to moral, economic, social, political factors that may be relevant to the client's situation

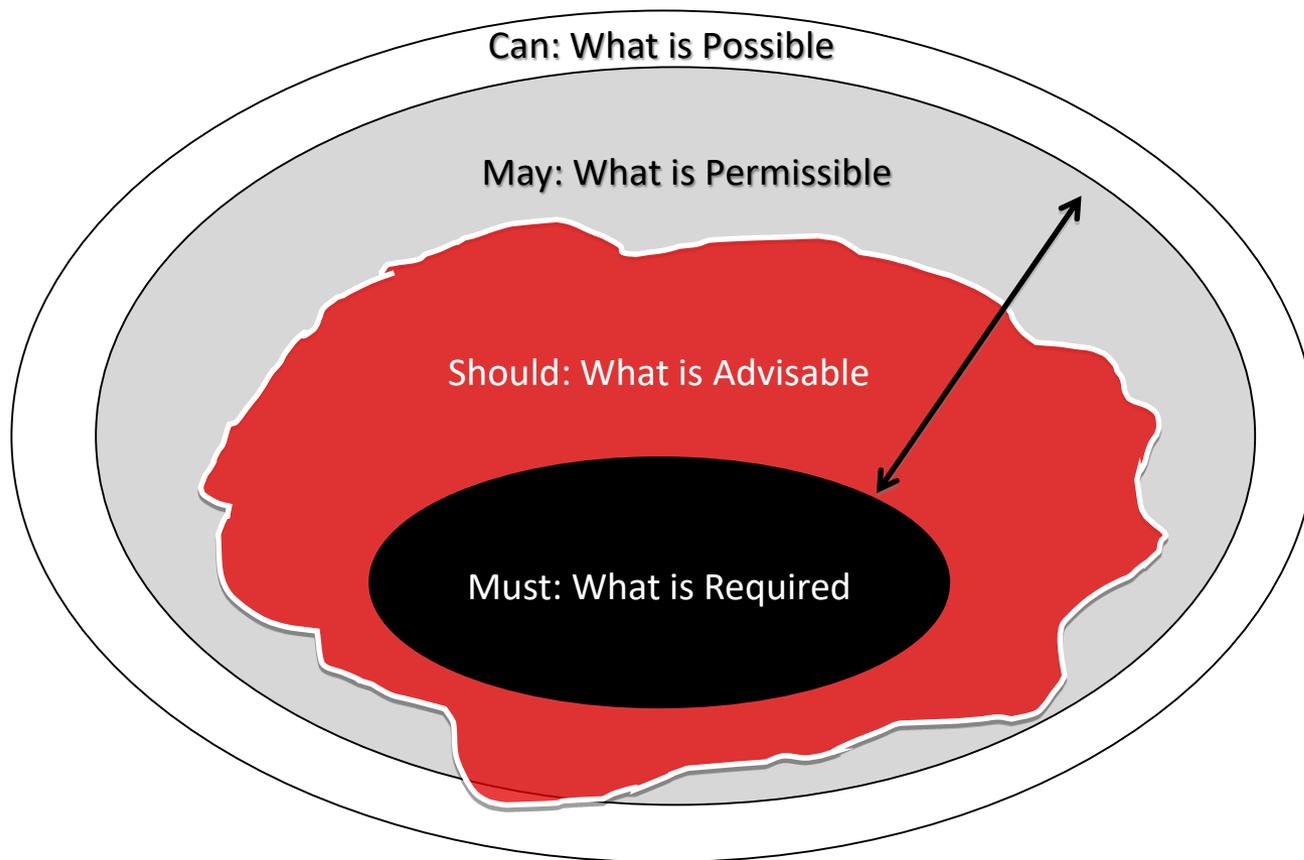

- Legal advice
- Strategic advice
- Risk management
- Business advice
- Compliance
- Committees
- Preventative strategies/Best practices
- Crisis management
- Communication

Becoming the Trusted Advisor

A trusted advisor doesn't (only) show up with a hero cape and fix stuff. A trusted advisor is a safe haven for tough issues.

How OGC Helps in Decision-Making

Lawyers: A User's Manual" by Steve McDonald, General Counsel of the Rhode Island School of Design

- Lawyers give advice

X • “Can (may) I do X?”

- Administrators make decisions and choices

✓ • “How can (may) I do X?”

Lawyers don't make your decisions.

Lawyers help make your decisions better.

Use of Race in Admissions, Again?

Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. President & Fellows of Harvard College

Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. University of North Carolina

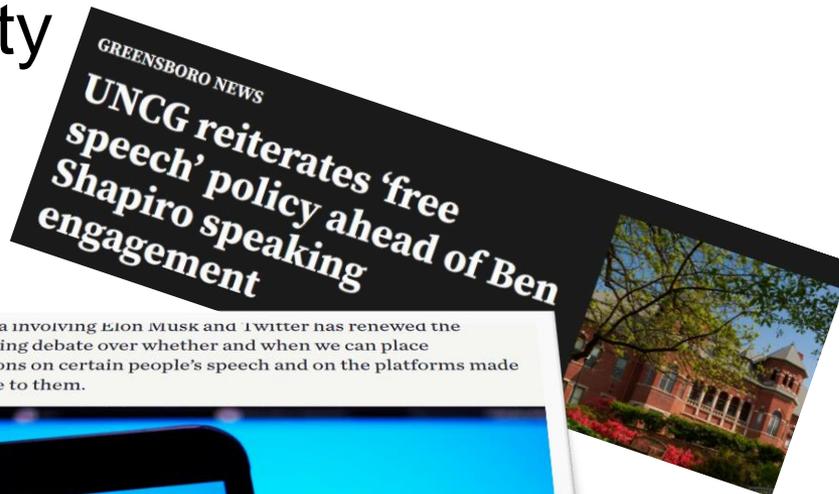

Supreme Court Will Hear Challenge to Affirmative Action at Harvard and U.N.C.

The court's new conservative supermajority may be skeptical of admissions programs that take account of race to foster educational diversity.

Issues: (1) Whether the Supreme Court should overrule Grutter v. Bollinger and hold that institutions of higher education cannot use race as a factor in admissions; and (2) whether Harvard College is violating Title VI of the Civil Rights Act by penalizing Asian American applicants, engaging in racial balancing, overemphasizing race and rejecting workable race-neutral alternatives.

Virginia Amends New Privacy Law

Thursday, April 14, 2022

Governor Glenn Youngkin of Virginia recently approved legislation to amend the Virginia Consumer Data Protection Act (VCDPA). In a time when data privacy is a hot topic, the bill will allow state legislatures only to die in

Ignore China's New Data Privacy Law at Your Peril

The Personal Information Protection Law gives authorities the power to impose huge fines and blacklist companies. But the biggest impact may be felt outside the country.

Update: On April 28, 2022, the Connecticut House passed a comprehensive privacy bill that cleared the Connecticut Senate last week, paving the way for Connecticut to become the fifth state with a comprehensive privacy law. The bill still needs to be signed into law by Governor
